MONDAY EVENING, MARCH 4

LOCAL MATTERS

For this section rain, followed to-night by clearing, cooler weather, winds becoming northwesterly.

STOPPED BY THE RAIN.—The Cadet Corps of St. John's Academy did not take part in the inaugural procession to-day as had been expected, the principal and teachers being all of the opinion that the necessary standing upon Capitol Hill, for probably three or four hours, in a drizzling rain, might give some of the boys pneumonia. They had their knapsacks packed and had received their rations, and were, consequently, greatly disappointed when the orders were countermanded at 10 o'clock; but the principal was firm, telling them that he was responsible for their health and could not take the responsibility of sending them in such weather. The Alexandria Drum Corps had volunteered its valuable assistance to the cadets, and they would have made a fine show, as they had been drilling up for it for some time past.

POLICE REPORT.—Last night was rainy and cool with three prisoners and ten lodgers at the station house.

The Mayor this morning disposed of the following cases:

Jas. Toller, arrested by officer Grady for throwing stones at the cows of Robert Taylor, had his case continued.

Mary Kelly, arrested by officer McCuen for being drunk and disorderly, was ordered to leave the city.

Geo. King, colored, arrested by officer Taylor charged with keeping a disorderly house, was dismissed.

Scott Dixon, colored, arrested by officer McCuen for disorderly conduct, had his case continued.

Wm. Washington, colored, arrested by officer Hayes for being drunk on the street, was fined $1.50.

Robt. Hopkins, colored, arrested by officer Bontz for being drunk and disorderly and for using abusive language to the officer, was fined $5.

BARLOW BROTHERS' MINSTRELS.—The Pittsburg Leader, in speaking of this famous minstrel troupe, which will appear here to-morrow night, says: "Barlow Brothers' Minstrels have with them a very clever lot of people. The musical king, Conway and McLeod, the juggler, Adrian, and the other specialties, are good; Master Edward Percy, the boy vocalist, is a wonder. The singing by the vocal members of the company is above the average heard with minstrel shows. The comicallies of the comedians pleased the audience highly. In fact it is conceded to be the best minstrel show yet seen here."

YESTERDAY WAS A RAIN, disagreeable day, with an incessant downpour of rain. The weather kept many persons from attending church. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather many strangers now in Washington came here and most of them attended Christ Church and visited the other places of interest in the city. Numbers of persons from this city went to Washington to see the inauguration crowd, the decorations and the preparations being made for to-day's celebration.

PERSONAL.—Mr. Robt. Bell is confined to his home by illness.

Mr. Jas. F. Peyton, of the Midland road, is quite ill at his home on Commerce street.

Judge R. H. Parker, of Winchester, was in the city to-day.

Dr. R. H. Stuart, of Westmoreland, brother of Judge C. E. Stuart, is visiting his relatives in this city. He says he heard yesterday that his uncle, Dr. R. H. Stuart, of King George county, was better.

ON TO WASHINGTON.—Despite the rain and the general disagreeable weather a large portion of Alexandria's people went to Washington to-day, to witness the inauguration ceremonies. All the trains from the south passing through the city were crowded and every boat and train which left here this morning carried as many passengers as well could secure standing room. Business in a measure was suspended and many stores were closed.

SINGULAR ACCIDENT.—On Saturday evening last, while a north-bound train on the Midland road was passing a cut at the base of White Rock hill, near Lynchburg, a stone weighing about thirty pounds was dislodged by the vibration of the earth caused by the train, and, falling, struck fireman C. W. Dowdy in the side, injuring him painfully but not seriously. He was taken on to his home in Charlottesville.

THE LORRA NOT WITH THEM.—A negro going along the street this morning, hurrying to catch the boat for Washington, thought he might be in time to see all the inauguration ceremonies, and whose clothing as well as his spirits had been dampened by the rain, was heard to say: "The Lord must be a democrat; recollect what a fine day the secession had when Cleveland was inaugurated."

Brig-Gen. Wm. S. Rosecrans was on Saturday placed on the retired list of the army, to date from March 1, 1889.

The effort to secure the confirmation by the Senate of Commissioner Webb and other appointments proved abortive.

Ex-Judge David S. Terry, who was committed to Alameda county, Cal., jail last September by Justice Field, for contempt of court, was released on Saturday night, having served his full term of six months.

At the dedication of a Catholic parochial school building in Pittsburgh yesterday, Bishop Kain, of the Catholic Diocese of Wheeling, delivered an address in which he severely denounced the public school system.

The Secretary of War on Saturday ordered a court martial for the trial of Major Garrett J. Lydecker, of the Corps of Engineers, on the charge of neglect of duty in connection with the work of constructing the aqueduct tunnel in Washington.

Dr. Johnston Blakely Jones, aged seventy-four, died at Charlotte, N. C., on Friday night. He was the founder of the North Carolina Medical Society and recognized as the ablest physician North Carolina ever had. He was a lineal descendant of Jeremy Taylor.

The Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church will meet in Grace Church, Baltimore, March 6; the Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South in this city March 13; the Maryland Annual Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church, Lynchburg, April 3.

The death of James C. Flood at Heidelberg leaves his daughter, Miss Jennie Flood, who was with him at the time of his death, probably the richest woman in the world. When the banana mines were at the zenith of their prosperity Mr. Flood gave his daughter $2,500,000 in United States bonds at one time as a birthday present.

Riddleberger's Exit.

The Senatorial career of Mr. Riddleberger ended last night in a scene never before witnessed on the floor of the U. S. Senate and culminated in his forcible ejection. Mr. Riddleberger had for several days been endeavoring to secure an executive session for consideration of the nomination of Commissioner Webb, of the District of Columbia, to succeed himself, but had been unsuccessful.

Shortly after the regular business was taken up last night Mr. Riddleberger made a motion for an executive session and on the question being put the Senate answered in a most emphatic No, much to the amusement of the occupants of the galleries. Mr. Riddleberger called for the yeas and nays, but the chair refused to recognize him further. After that Mr. Riddleberger became belligerent and objected to the consideration of each bill that was taken up (all being of a private character), but the chair absolutely ignored him on every occasion.

Mr. Riddleberger left the chamber for a short time but again returned, and after at last securing the recognition of the chair said that he had telegraphed his resignation as Senator to the Governor of Virginia because he was not recognized in the Senate, and was then awaiting an answer from the Governor. He was making some remarks about the chair not recognizing a republican Senator from Virginia when the chair ordered him to sit down, or the sergeant-at-arms would be directed to carry out the order of the chair.

"You needn't do that," said Mr. Riddleberger, who then took his seat.

Mr. Hawley had a resolution under consideration when Mr. Riddleberger again objected, and insisted on having his objection recognized. The chair then directed him to sit down, and not complying, the sergeant-at-arms was directed to carry out his order, but on the earnest solicitation of those about him, Mr. Riddleberger resumed his seat before the order was carried out.

Later on, as the reading of the matter under consideration was in progress, Mr. Riddleberger arose and addressed the chair, who thereupon ordered the sergeant-at-arms to execute the order.

Col. Canaday proceeded to execute the order and took hold of Mr. Riddleberger's coat lapel but the Senator grasped his seat with one hand, and a struggle seemed imminent. The scene was an intensely exciting one, and the vast throng in the galleries sat with suppressed breath, while on the floor the tangle of nervous excitement was felt in every frame.

At this moment Mr. May, one of Col. Canaday's deputies, seized Mr. Riddleberger's hand and arm, and his grip being loosened, Col. Canaday, putting an arm around his body, half-carried him into the cloak room, the door being but a few feet distant. He was kept there under guard of one of the deputy sergeant-at-arms, while various of his associates endeavored to calm him, and get him into a reasonable frame of mind. In the meantime the business of the Senate proceeded, and the episode was over. Subsequently Mr. Riddleberger took a carriage and went to his hotel.

At last accounts Mr. Riddleberger had not received notice of the acceptance of his resignation.

Direct Tax Bill Voted.

The President on Saturday evening returned to the Senate without his approval the measure known as the direct tax bill, which contemplates the return of the monies collected from the several States and Territories under the act of August 1861. In the message of transmittal the President says:

"It is my belief that this appropriation of the public funds is not within the constitutional power of the Congress. I am constrained upon the considerations herein presented to withhold my assent from the bill herewith returned, because I believe it to be without constitutional warrant; because I am of the opinion that there exists no adequate reason either in right or equity for the return of the tax in full bill mentioned, and because I believe its execution would cause actual injustice and unfairness."

The Senate passed the bill over the veto at the evening session by a vote of 15 to 9. The negative votes were given by Senators Blair, Call, Coke, Edmunds, Jones (Ark.), Pasco, Resgan, Saulsbury and Vest.

A Black Friday.—That day, when a person is first seriously attacked with rheumatism, may well be termed a black one, for he will remember the same as long as he lives. He uses Salvation Oil in time, he will, however, soon be able to speak of a "Good Friday."

LOCAL BREVITIES.

To-morrow will be Shrove Tuesday—pancake day.

This was not Cleveland's day—neither was it Cleveland weather.

The safe in Willard's Hotel in Washington was robbed of $1,100 yesterday by a daring thief.

The clothes line of Mr. Geo. Phillips, in the southwestern part of the city, was robbed last night.

Mr. James Beach, a well known citizen of the First ward, died at his home on Duke street, on Saturday night.

The storm which started in Texas and came all along the coast will doubtless be distorted into a southern outrage.

The funeral of the late Miss Georgia A. Worthington took place from "Clarens," her late home on Seminary Hill, this morning. The services were conducted by Revs. H. Suter, A. Lloyd and K. Welson, and her remains were interred in the burial ground on the place.

Missed from the inaugural procession to-day was Gen. Fitz Lee, who divided with President Cleveland four years ago the ovation of the populace. On the principle of "turn about," Gov. Foraker headed the division of northern and southern (principally northern) militia that Gov. Lee led four years ago.

Mr. Washington Danenhower, real estate agent in Washington, has sold for Mr. W. A. Smoot, of this city, house No. 300 C Street northeast, to Mrs. Julia Walsh, for $5,500, and house No. 306 and 308 C Street northeast, to Mr. John McFarland, for $10,000. The latter has sold to Mr. Smoot nine lots at the corner of Third and Massachusetts avenues northeast, for $12,000.

Proceedings of Congress.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 4.

SENATE.

Various messages of a formal character were received from the House; announcements were made of enrolled bills being signed; and conference reports, chiefly on unimportant bills, were made and agreed to. In this manner three quarters of an hour passed. Then the presiding officer presented the credentials of Mr. James McMillan, as Senator elect from the State of Michigan. The paper set out the proceedings in detail, which were read by the clerk.

HOUSE.

Mr. Blanchard, of Louisiana, rising to a question of privilege, affecting the dignity of the House, called attention to the fact that the corridors of the Capitol, on some one's order, were closed even to the officers of the House. Members were allowed to pass through, but their wives and families were not allowed to accompany them. He offered a resolution directing the sergeant-at-arms of the House to take the necessary steps to secure forthwith to the members of the House and to their families free access through the corridors of the Capitol.

Mr. Lodge, of Massachusetts, wished to find out whether the House members had any rights in the other wing of the Capitol that any employee of the Senate was bound to respect, and cited an instance in which he had been treated with disrespect by Senate employees.

Mr. Folger, of Tennessee, thought that in view of the insolence of the Senate the House should refuse to participate, under the present arrangement, in the order of ceremonies.

Mr. Cox, of New York, was opposed to taking such a radical step. It might be misunderstood or misconstrued. This was an old question, and it ought to be settled by some protest now. He thought the House ought to teach this man Ingalls, and others, that it was a co-ordinate branch of the national legislature. He subsequently withdrew the remark "this man Ingalls."

Mr. Anderson, of Kansas, declared that the Capitol was under the control of Congress and yet the Senate in the exuberance of its insolence undertook to deprive members of the House of the right of way through the Capitol.

Pending action the House adjourned to witness the inaugural ceremonies.

A NEW RAILROAD DIVISION.—The Richmond and Danville Railroad has been separated into two divisions, on account of the lines being too extensive for the management of the superintendent. Mr. R. B. Bridges, late engineer of maintenance of way of the Virginia Midland division, has been appointed superintendent of the new line known as the North Carolina division, which comprises all the branch roads formerly under the management of Mr. W. B. Ryder, the late superintendent of the whole division, and now the superintendent of the main line, comprising all the road from West Point to Charlotte. Mr. Bridges will be stationed at Durham, N. C.
